CVNA gets gift from Blue Robin Inc.

STAFF REPORTS

ATTLEBORO
Software developer Blue Robin Inc. of Waltham has donated $10,000 to help offset costs of design, development and implementation of eBusiness infrastructure for the Community Visiting Nurse Association of Attleboro.

The CVNA provides home health care services including skilled nursing and rehabilitation care as well as hospice care, private care, adult day health and well-ness services throughout the communities of southeastern Massachusetts.

The infrastructure that will be built for the CVNA will use the latest Internet technology and feature a content management system, an HR job posting, and an education event calendar that will be seamlessly integrated with the VNA's Web site.

"We thank Blue Robin for donating this very generous gift-in-kind," said Kathleen Trier, executive director and CEO of the CVNA. "We are deeply grateful to Blue Robin for their creativity and expertise in this important project. It's a pleasure to be associated with them as we work together to design and build a Web site infrastructure that will serve our organization today and well into the future."

Hadi Shavarini, CEO of Blue Robin, said Blue Robin was delighted to help the non-profit organization.

"We are committed to continuing our support for Community VNA and will be available to them for ongoing development of their communication technology needs," he said.
